Comment agissent les Patches ?

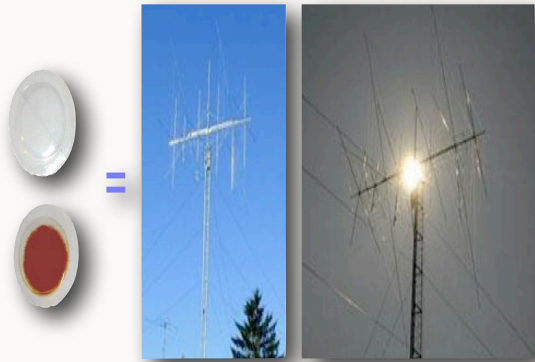

- Les patches sont « programmés » comme des ordinateurs pour délivrer un message biologique à notre organisme
- Le champ magnétique du patch entre en résonance avec celui de la cellule...

Comment agissent les Patches ?

- Le message biochimique passe à travers de la membrane cellulaire
- Puis arrive au niveau de l'ADN et provoque des réactions biochimiques
- Le message biochimique induit et programmé par le patch va provoquer une action précise dans notre corps...

Comment agissent les Patchs ?

- Les patchs sont comparables à des antennes émettrices
- Qui délivrent un message au corps, pour que celui exécute une action
- Les actions seront :
 - Augmentation de l'énergie, de l'endurance
 - Accroissement de la masse musculaire
 - Augmentation du taux d'hormones
 - "Brûle" les graisses

NO EL PLATES: Victoria is spotted driving in Madrid for first time, with son Romeo in back

SO this is what David Beckham's physio meant when he said we'll soon have you patched up, son.

The 28-year-old Madrid star has been wearing these small devices to boost his fitness level as the World Cup approaches.

Based on his previous work, they work by releasing amino acids which stimulate the body to store energy and extra energy according to the maker.

Beckham and his foot team massaged the patches on to his arms and legs.

The patches are widely used by sports stars in America and were introduced to the Spanish club by a friend of Beckham's.

A final source said: "These men are athletes, they are athletes who live their lives especially when they're playing at world-class level."

"Using the patches has helped boost their own natural capabilities and the joy is that there are no chemicals in them."

Lifeway's European director, Alan, also added: "I've not supposed before we've used it in matches, because they work."

"They're a natural product that increases energy by up to 40 per cent. They enable the body to release it, absorb it, and to think, in fact nothing from the patches enters the body."

They contain no chemicals, no toxins, in fact nothing from the patches enters the body.

But experts are sceptical about the patches. American Academy of Dietitians' spokeswoman, Dr Franck, called on the makers to explain exactly how they work and doubted the claim machine enters the body at all.

"When you use amino acids, that's what you're using to get back on the road."

he anything. It sounds like a vague description because they don't want to say that it is.

"It would not surprise me to see sporting federations buy that type of thing unless the company comes forth with specific data showing exactly what it is."

Amgen's chief executive, Richard Peto, said: "The question is whether it's stimulating the body's electrical field. I've never seen a scientific study that shows you can use amino acids to change electrical fields."

The patches may boost energy and they clearly do not make stars play any better – so Beckham and his team found out on Thursday night when they were thrashed 4-0 by Barcelona.

Perhaps Beckham's energy has been drained recently – when he last played Barcelona, he was spotted about twice on the wrong side of the road, but last week 31-year-old Peto was spotted driving the motor with his son Romeo for the first time. A source said: "Victoria has had to thank for getting her back on the road."
